Three Candidates for Saanich, Islands

Supporters of the New Democratic, Social Credit and Progressive Conservative parties turned out in force Wednesday night to nominate their choices for the Saanich and the Islands riding.

Saanich Liberals will hold their nominating meeting next Wednesday evening at Holyrood House.

NDP supporters chose Carol Pickup over Dr. Philip Ney as their candidate, while Tory-turned-Socred Hugh Curtis and Progresive Conservative Mrs. Irene Block were nomin-ated by acclamation to repre-ZOOODOOOOOO sent their parties.

Voters can't afford to let the opposition wipe away the gains of the people, Finance Minsiter Dave Stupich said at Mrs: Pickup's nomination

The minister told NDP supporters to say loudly and clearly at the polls that they are happy with the gains made by the NDP.

"The NDP started blazing new trails within six weeks of new trails within six weeks of being elected and we can't af-ford to have it taken away from the people of B.C.," said the Nanaimo MLA, whose message was met with thun-dering applause and a stand-ing avaston.

He said the NDP was so "doggonned good at oppos-ing" after its long history in the opposition that the party 'forgot it was supposed to help our government

"All the way along the line the party joined with the people to try and make the NDP government strive further and election promises of three years ago are 70 per cent complete.

... if voters of B.C. say they don't recognize the importance of the policies and don't see the need to consolidate gains in B.C. What the opposi-tion is saying to the people is the programs are not good," said Stupich.

"Canadians are watching and waiting to see what B.C. thinks of the NDP's record in the last few years."

Stupich told some 160 party supporters gathered at Keating elementary school that they could wrench the Saan-ich seat away from Hugh Curtis, who won the seat in 1972 as a Conservative.

Election Issue?

We've heard about how candidates for municipal office promse to increase the size of the police force, return power to the people in neighborhoods, establish a ward system on council, build low-cost housing for senior citizens and sell off civic institutions such as Memorial Arena and the McPherson theatre.

But what about the really important issues, for example, the proposed Sunday closing bylaw? Hardly a peep have we heard on this burning question from the men and women standing for office in Victoria.

The bylaw was tabled by the present council, and it won't be picked up again until January when the new slate takes office. There are indications it shall be allowed to die a quiet death. Why then was there such a fuss in the Mike Young, who was (after Mayor Peter Pollen) the bylaw's strongest supporter, said last week: "I think the idea of enforcing a bylaw of this type in the city would be extremely difficult." Unless similar measures were enacted in neighboring municipalities, Victoria's bylaw would stand in useless isolation, was the gist of Young's comments.

While opponents of the biassed and one-sided draft Sunday bylaw will be gladdened at Young's statement of second thoughts, we remain curious as to the transfor-

U.S. Longing for a Leader

PALM BEACH, Fla. - "With the bicentennial coming up," a young busi-nessman said here: "I keep wondering this: Back then, when this country was founded, we had a really remarkable group of leaders, some really great men. And now we don't seem to have anybody to come in and lead us out of this mess we're in. What's happened to us? Why don't we have leaders anymore?" In one form or another, that question frequently recurs among a group of bu-sinessmen meeting here. Even at their Halloween costume ball, politics was a matter of constant discussion with a visiting reporter, and the talk kept coming back to the same questions: Where are America's leaders? Who will show us the

That will be no surprise to anyone who moves about the U.S. today, trying to get a sense of what's on people's minds, how they look at themselves and their country. Not ordy is there substantial uneasiness - reflected in the polls about the presidency of Gerald Ford, and a pervasive sense that the country is in trouble, even if the trouble is variously defined; but also there seems to be a most powerful hunger not for any stated program or policy, but for a "real lead-er" who will "get us out of this mess."

Lincoln, Roosevelt

Often there is something quite moving, almost forlorn, in the expressions of desire for such leadership, as if the country had lost something it once knew well -- as if something inexorable in nodern life had extinguished the possibilities of another Roosevelt, or another

The historical facts are, of course, that in November, 1859, or November, 1931, not many Americans saw-Abraham Lincoln or Franklin Roosevelt as great leaders, let alone great men who could lead a nation through its most terrible trials. Lincoln was scarcely known at all outside Illinois, and Roosevelt was widely considered an ambitious lightweight. More recently, John F. Kennedy had his fervent supporters in Tate 1959 but there were many more Americans who did not think he looked or sounded much like a president, and many of the same Americans did not much admire Richard Nixon either. No leadership from them, they thought, as they longed for Adlai Stevenson or Nelson Rockefeller or somebody to get the country out of the troubles it was in then - there was a recession, the Russians were getting ahead of us in missiles and space, and is he the Messiah."

Castro was thumbing his nose hinety miles offshore.

The currently most admired recent president, Harry Truman, took office upon Roosevelt's death to almost universal groans of doubt that he could do the job, and he never did convince millions of Americans at the time that he was "a real leader." On the other hand, no preidential candidate ever was more qualified on paper, or more widely admired for his leadership abilities than Dwight Eisenhower, who turned out to be a father figure rather than a strong leader. But the point is not just that one of those relatively faceless persons contending for the presidency today might yet prove to be a "real leader," as did Roosevelt and Truman, or at least a eharismatic figure, as did Kennedy. There is also something ominous in the deep longing of so many Americans for a savior, in their sense that the country an "get out of this mess" only if a great man somehow emerges from the crowd to show the way. There is a paradox, too, in that the two most recent "strong" presidents, Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon each of whom came to grief after winning landslide victories — are in low repute today. So is the "imperial presidency" they came to exemplify, even though every president back to Roosevelt had much to do with developing that mperialism. Nobody seems to want another Johnson or Nixon - certainly not another Vietnam or Watergate - and These historical precedents merely seem irrelevant, as if the only "real leader" one of rectitude and strength.

Routine Junctions

The longing for leadership, though natural enough in troubled times and tics, suggests a profound impatience, even-disilfusionment, with the slow, often processes of democratic politics. And while personality usually has been more important to American voters issues, the search for a leader seldom has seemed so nearly to represent indithe complexity of things, the inadequacy,

That is why the presidential election of 1976 may be one of the most important in U.S. history. If the routine functioning of American politics can produce something like the desired leadership, as it so often has in the past, confidence can be

Beware Waffle

The NDP campaign appears aimed at convincing the unwary that socialism is concerned only with producing a welfare state. The true goals of socialism were better stated in the resolutions prepared by the Waffle movement in the NDP for the party's federal convention in 1971. The resolutions were rejected, not because they did not truly reflect socialist philosophy, but because they were considered too radical for popular consumption in Canada at that time. The follow ing are random quotes from the Waffle

"A socialist extra-parliamentary strategy must reject the liberal concept of participatory democracy, which rests on the illusion of an ultimate community of interests and which denies the reality of class conflict. Participation by unions in labor-management committees, for example, is not a sufficient condition to alter the basic relationship of power and control between workers and management. We recognize that workers' control, in its full sense, can never be realized under capitalism. The idea of men and women who are directly involved in production, exercising full control over the management of productive enterprises, is incompatible with the private ownership of those enterprises. The achievement of workers' control awaits cialist Canada."

We should stop accepting outmoded 19th century terminology such as "the workers," "the bosses," "class conflict" and "the people," without any clear delinition as to just what is meant. Militant labor action is in most cases today taken against the masses, not "management. In a true socialist state, this would be regarded as crimes against the people and punished as such.

Who can tell us, before we go to the polls, what socialism really stands for? Perhaps we should ask some of those who signed the Waffle Manifesto, such as Dave Barrett, Eileen Dailly, Gordon-Dowding, James Lorimer, Alex Mac-donald and Norman Levi. However, let us be aware that those who aspire to dictate the lives of their fellow-men, believe that the end justifies the means, and thus may not hesitate to reassure us that free enterprise and socialism are

There is only one real issue in this election, and it is not wage and price controls or whether some NDP sponsored programs are worthwhile. To de Faye, 3011 Foul Bay Road.

Spaniards Resentfully Accepted Their 'Landlord'

By RICHARD EDER New York Times

Twenty-four years ago, a visitor in Spain, after being there for just an hour and a half, heard his first Franco joke. Things were still rough in 1951; there was still hunger and there was a suffocating sense of control.

Yet it was a stranger who told the joke, in a crowded third-class railroad compartment that stank of brick-dust sausage and the gritty bleakness that night-train trips had those days in Spain. People's destinations tended to be benchmarks of hopelessness: wet-nurses leaving their own bables to go suckle for a diplomat's wife in Madrid, bankrupt businessmen looking for a connection in the capital, Republicans going to petition for some legal relief.

It was an old man who told the joke. Ramper, the il-

It was an old man who told the joke Ramper, the il-lustrious clown, comes out on stage with a bicycle he proposes to ride. The rear wheel collapses and he straightens it. The front wheel collapses and he straightens it. The handle-bars fall off. By now the crowd is shouting altern tely: "Fix it" and "Get Out." Ramper bows with dignity and says: "My dear friends, I shall be frank." The Spanish word for "frank," of course, is Franco. "I shall neither fix it nor get out."

It wasn't a very good joke, though a somewhat better prophecy. But more than prophetic, it was symptomatic. There was an odd kind of contract between Franco and the Spanish people. He could be loved or hated — he didn't seem to care much which — he could be praised or complained about (the latter not in a shout, certainly, but the could almost the property in a whiston, either), and he could almost not exactly in a whisper either) and he could almost always be joked about.

He could even be pushed, but not suddenly and not for long. Like an old woman caught in a rush-hour crowd, he would teeter along just enough not to get knocked ower and take advantage of every gap or eddy to stop and step back while everyone else went by.

The France regime was procussed in the process and improve the regime was the procussed in the process and improve the regime was the procussed in the process and improve the regime was the procussed in the process and improve the regime was the regime was the regime was the regime to the regime was the regime to the regi

The Franco regime was porous and impermeable. It had a slight sway to it: it encouraged and all but set up a struggle between its own evolutionary and reactionary currents; it would give, first one way and then the other.

It survived so long through a wide range of harshness and leniency, applying virtually unlimited means to limited goals. When General Franco appeared — not in the vanguard but in the precisely-judged middle of the wave of conservative Spanish reaction to the Republic — there were those on his side who thought his goat was a New Order along the lines of Hitler and Mussolini.

The Falangists were sure that General Franco belonged to them; and much of the specifically Fascist image acquired abroad by Franco Spain goes back to an early Spain when General Franco did, indeed, make use of them. But their position dwindled, and they became simply one of many strands that the generalissimo braided together in pursuit of his one real, substantial aim.

He was interested in holding Spain more than running it. He was the landowner. He employed a series of farm managers, some old-fashioned, others mildly experimental. He would make decisions when he thought them really necessary, but mostly he kept his eye on those forces, internal or international, that might threaten his power.

When the threat was big and active, he fought it ferociously. Even historians favorable to General Franco find no way to gloss over the atrocious reprisals that followed his victory in the civil war. Some 200,000 prisoners are generally held to have been executed or to have

There is still no real explanation of why he did it. There were hideous atrocities on the Republican side during the fighting; but so were there on the Nationalist side. General Franco was not, by any available account, carried away by passion: he was impenetrably cold. Probably it was simply to remove a threat, as a farmer will burn

As the threat diminished, so did General Franco's use

General Franco seems to have placed this sufficiency at a

An instinct for the economy of power has surely been the quality most approaching brilliance in this man who not only gave the impression of mediocrity but sowed it about him as if it were a cash crop. He was the only real tactician in a country that tends to produce nothing but strategists. He was silent and impalpable among a people whose loquacity is matched only by their need to hold and advertise a clear and palpable image of themselves

In the photographs of the civil war the other Nationalist generals, hawknosed, bearded, flashing-eyed, look as if they had dressed themselves each morning in Spanish his-tory. General Franco, who only joined their conspiracy when it was ripe and whose rivals in it quickly got themselves killed, is short, round, bland, Buddha-like.

The question, of course, is why, for so much of the time, General Franco needed to use so little force to keep so much power? Popularity is a misleading word in Spain: A people so harshly suspicious of themselves will never

Besides, the impression during four years there was that most Spaniards were, insofar as the term has any meaning, "against" General Franco.

This is not to say that, just as a deep vein of bitterness toward General Franco can be found among his most hardbitten supporters, there is not a kind of respect to be found among some of his vocal opponents. Furthermore— until the last couple of years when his aged lingering became so tedious and alarming that even his own people hoped he would go—if a number of his opponents includ-ing Communists had been given buttons to push to remove him, it is more than likely that they would have hesitated months and perhaps years before pushing.

Acceptance is more exact than popularity. It was a conditional, often resentful acceptance, crisscrossed by rebellion, and in the last years held together mainly by the fact that he was bound to die soon anyway. Still, it was mly in Western consciousness. But abroad it is embedded as a cause; inside Spain it lives partly as a cause but much more as a series of terrible consequences.

The most apparent psychological residues Spaniards feel from the civil war are guitt and fear. Guilt that they allowed themselves to tear themselves up so cruelly. Fear of it happening again and a determination that it must not.

There were other elements, among them the opening up of the frontier to European prosperity, even while European politics was regularly turned back. But more important there was General Franco's ability to recognize his place in the world. In this he was far closer to the basic caution of Stalin than to the delusion of Hitler or

During the Second World War, General Franco was profuse in his verbal support of the Axis, but he never gave Hitler what he wanted: military alliance and an open road to Gibraltar. After the war Western Europe turned against him but he hung on and after a couple of tricky years, found his guaranty with a base agreement with the United States. It probably saved him. When General Franco dies, a great many 60- and 70-year-olds around Western Europe and in some parts of the United States, will rejoice and then become a little older. Francoism was the last living bit of the history of that most history-ridden decade of the 1930s.

Victories grow stale because people live in their fading readity. To Western democrats, General Franco was a splinter of defeat preserved in a kind of amber by their general victory of the Second World War. Defeat keeps all the possibilities of what might have been: by living on and on, this aged figure kept alive a corner of his aging

The Petite Forte is a 173-foot, diesel-driven, 14-year-old workhorse in CN's Newfoundland and Labrador coastal service. She carries a bit of cargo, a few dozen passengers and, as crew, the most good-natured bunch of men I've ever seen on one job for days on end.

And now, she's 400 miles out of Lewisporte. We've stopped at Nippers Harbor, Baire Vete, St. Anthony, Conche, Croque, and a dozen other outports in Notre Dame Bay, White Bay, Hare Bay and along the eastern shore of Newfoundland's great northern pen-

We offload a used gas pump, an engine part, a washing machine, a box of marshmallows and sometimes, at the last second, a bunch of kids who've swarmed aboard for a thrilling look around the vessel. We take on some fresh fish for supper, and a couple of fishermen's families. (They'll spend the

The fragrance is hot. It's not supposed to be. Like the proverbial American tourist who brings his skis to Muskoka in July, I brought a winter raincoat to Newfoundland and for days now, the whole province has been Ottawa-hot. Even out here, miles off the coast of Labrador, a white mist of sullen heat Together, they're a silent finger of water stabbing through one of the world's most formidable wildernesses to Goose Bay, Black fligs and half-inch mosqui-toes join the hornets as unwelcome stowaways. The forests burn and burn and burn. The heat is Mexican. We are 775 miles out of Lewisporte.

I hop a plane for St. John's and, a couple of days later, I read that the Petite Forte, southbound out of Goose Bay, has dropped into Port Hope Simpson on the Labrador coast to rescue 200 women and children from a forest fire that's threatening to engulf the town.

I raise my glass to her and, just then, I eatch sight of one of those ubi-quitous signs insisting I "Give Canada A Hug." It irritates me. It may suit Denmark. One might consider giving Holland a hug or, depending on the political situation, even Portugal.

But Canada? Give Canada a hug, what a stupid, pretentious, cosy, cutesy, spongy little blob of sissy, citiefied smarm that is. This country is not a spaniel puppy. It's not huggable. People who force such darling slogans on the rest of us should all go out and give a porcupine a hug. Then they might be-gin to understand the country.

mittee is launching its fourth decade of service overseas with a program that ranges from midday meals for the needy to high school scholarships in Southern Africa.

As always, USC executive director Dr. Lotta Hitschomonova, who started the ormonova, who started the of-ganization in 1945 with head-quarters in a small Ottawa apartment, will be in Victoria to launch the annual cam-paign for funds Nov. 20.

Today more than 21,000 children have passed through USC-sponsored homes in 11 countries and the agency has raised a total of more than $13 million in funds and more than $12 million in gifts in kind during the past 30 years.

For the first decade the USC had no certain future beyond each year's end The directors annually weighed the evidence of continuing need and decided that there were compelling reasons to continue the agency for another 12 months.

With a succession of natural and man-made disasters the need has never faltered and the spring of 1975, Dr. Hitsch-manova made her first survey manova made her first survey in Indonesia to assess possible USC projects making a total of 18 countries in which the agency has worked since 1945.

Voteless Horde

Told: Sorry,

We Can't Help'

Saanich health inspector Robert Bradbury is back at work today after a 6½-day suspension which has cost him

Bradbury was suspended last week by Jim Campbell, chairman of the Capital Regional Board, for telling an irate phone caller that one way to get action on sewers was to vote Saanich mayor

Ed Lum out of office.

Lum said today he would have been satisfied if Bradbury had just been given a verbal reprimand.

In a closed door session Wednesday, the regional board endorsed Campbell's suspension as well as his recommendation the suspension be lifted today.

There was one vote in opposition but Lum said he did not vote at all on the thing about it, the voteless ones — there are an estimated 15,000 in the city of Vic-

Meanwhile, Daryl Anderson, president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees unit to which Bradbury belongs said today the union will ask the Labor Relations Baord to rule on whether the matter is one for arbitra-tion. If it is, the union will take it to ar-

In a brief to the regional board Wednesday, the union argued the suspension is in contravention of the contract and was taken by Campbell against the wishes of Lum.

The Forgotten Issue: It's All on the Record

At this writing the provincial election campaign is just a couple of weeks in full gear and I can say that, seldom before, have I had such a compulsive desire to find myself anice, quiet Pacific atoll, far removed from the newspapers, the radio, the television and, above all, the candidates.

nice, quiet Pacific atoil, far removed from the newspapers, the radio, the television, and, above all, the candidates. It would be convenient to put this down to simple nostalgia, remembering when elections were often actually fought on the issues. But I'm convinced now that there's a spill-over from the world-wide climate of violence and that we here in this relatively remote, relatively prospering, province have rrom the world-wide climate of violence and that we here in this relatively remote, relatively prospering, province have become a part of that global hysteria.

Even a cursory examination of the views of the candidates and the reaction of the voting public is enough to convince any monitor that this particular campaign is routed in emotions rather than a cool or contemplative weighing of the important issues. A whole let of that amotional resume important issues. A whole lot of that emotional response

There are those who might argue, I suppose, that an election so fraught with vindictive name-calling and the vitupera-tion of the so-called public is only an indication of the vitality of democracy. I wish I could think that way, Instead it seems to me only the evidence of a shallow and badly-informed populace swayed easily by any promise and by the cultism of personality.

Aft old-time newspaper friend of mine who covered Premier Barrett's last tour of the interior tells me that never before, in his experience, has he encountered such an ignorance of the issues. He offers the opinion neither in defence nor as a criticism of Barrett, but simply out or a sense of wonderment that we can have a sense of direction or purpose when the electorship is so fragmented by immature feelings that can only be described as intuitive.

He does not know if the Barrett administration will win or lose. Either way, in his view, it will not be because of what that administration has done or has not done. It will not be because of alternatives proposed by Bill Bennett, Gordon Gibson or Dr. Scott Wallace. It is not, in other words, so much an election choice as it is a popularity contest in which, by and large, each voter allows his own narrow prejudice to take precedence over the broader questions.

You find this, particularly, in the hot line programs. I refuse to see them as a cross-section of public opinion, but they do let us know the mood of some individual voters. If one listened only to such programs it would seem that the only important issue is socialism versus private enterprise. Yet neither the government nor the opposition candidates make any such clear distinction. I 've yet to hear an opposition candidate, for example, who would wipe out legislation that might be described as remotely socialist.

As an issue, then, that might be described as marginal, to, say the least, but it may account in part for the amount of hatred, bitterness and labelling that has been so evident in these weeks of campaigning. Barrett and Bernett thus become either ogres or saints depending upon what camp you happen to be in and, in the process, the issues themselves take second place. This, I submit, is a hell of a way to run a democracy.

Barrett, himself, makes a serious mistake, I am convinced, in sinking to that level, in his frequent accusations, rightly or wrongly, against the former administration.

It's said that, in Ontario, Stephen Lewis made considerable gains for the NDP by sticking entirely to the issues and avoiding the temptation to join in the dog-fight that certainly cost his opponents some support. Barrett should have learned a lesson there. He should have said — he should still say — here is what we have done, there it all is in black and white, the established fact. Now it's up to you to decide if we should

Racing: Sandown Park Produced 'A Game Lot'

As Tojo the Tout would say: So the ponies have gone; but they'll be back next fall won't they? Asd yes, they will. The Capital City Turf has made its point, that Victoria can support thoroughbred racing even when suffering through some of the worst weather in history, records tumbling all over the

When the meeting ended on Tuesday, everyone connected with the venture was congratulating everyone else, which was only natural in view of the success of the endeavour; and the biggest roar of delight came from Turf Club directors and racing officials when Racing Secretary and presiding steward Aubrey Davies entered the press room after the final race and proudly announced. "We made it. The handle is

The magic figure of $300,000 had been set as the mutual goal earlier, based on two big Saturdays; and it may also be recalled that in September, 1974 when local owner George Harknett first made the public plea for horse racing here, he said: "I wouldn't hesitate to say that Victoria could hit $300,000, with improved betting facilities a $300,000 average is possible and I can even see the handle going to $500,000 on Saturdays."

That was Harknett's long-range view then and how the city's punters have proven him partly correct.

Another point, Harknett made then was—it troubled him to think that many things, such as horse racing, were drifting away from the Island and Victoria really wasn't getting a fair shake.

So, since then the Capital City Turf Club was formed; the B.C. Racing Commission allotted the CCTC dates at Sandown; the horsemen came, so did the rains and, best of all from a financial viewpoint, so did the fans.

And on Tuesday it was truly remarkable. People were parking as far away as a mile from the track and hiking in or getting picked up by the shuttle bus because of the almost hopeless situation in the main parking lot.

hopeless situation in the main parking lot.

Publicity director Harry Filion possibly said it best of all when he commented: "They're a game lot."

The point now is that the CCTC has made its presence felt on the horse-racing scene and even Merv Peters, the high poobah of the B.C. Jockey Club., was impressed when he visited the track during the meeting. "Exceptional," he said. And further, because of the impact here, the CCTC now may find itself in a much better position to bargain for an earlier start to next year's meeting. It is not that there is a plan to take away any dates from Ex-Park. It is just that CCTC directors feel the fans as well as the horsemen deserve it; and the new target date is a start about 10 days earlier than this year's opening date of Oct. 7.

This would also give the CCTC a better chance with the weather and it would be fairer to the patrons who put up with terrible conditions to get to the track this year. Scotty Hughes, a veteran official and a Commission steward at the meeting, said "I still don't believe it, and would you thank them (the fans) and the horsemen for me."

Ex-Park had 101 racing days last season and it is expected it will have about the same again next year; and if that appears to preclude Victoria getting an earlier start, it is not necessarily so. Ex-Park could start a week earlier or run through a five-day program in July and August; and in that way the meeting could even end in mid-September.

Perhaps that's an over-simplification of the problem.

Because it is highly likely that the B.C. Jockey Club, which because it is nightly likely that the B.C. Jokey Cide, which has a $4 million expansion project underway at Ex-Park will be applying for Sunday racing again; and sooner or later, it is expected it will be approved. In addition to the installation; 0.2.170 new seats, the latest design in pari-mutuel equipment is included in the program. And, to be frightfully frank as that is where the big money is, therein will lie any built-in preferences. It was ever thus.

Still, Sandown deserves a break and already CCTC directors are studying notes made of where they went wrong or could improve facilities for next year. There is no question

UE U III III II IS have put 230,000 miles on

While most statistics may be pretty boring, we think this one is pretty impressive.

9 out of 10 Toyotas we've sold in Canada in the last ten years are still on the road today.* And we've sold a lot of Toyotas. Over the past five years we've sold more cars than any other import car manufacturer-more than 250,000 of them. And nearly every one of them is still on the road.

All of which makes us very happy. And we're not the only ones. Over the past several years we've received literally hundreds of letters from Toyota owners. And what they have to say, says it all.

DEAR TOYOTA:

"In March 1971 when I purchased my Corolla 1200 I had thoughts of trading it in within twelve months-before I ran into problems.

The fact that I still have the car and have driven it in excess of 106,000 miles, speaks for itself.

The car has performed beautifully in all kinds of weather, on all types of road and carrying a variety of loads. There have been very few mechanical problems and when work is required parts are readily available, even to the local service station.

Driving the number of miles I do in a year, I am naturally interested in economy. My Corolla provides great mileage while giving a ride which is more comfortable than many standard size cars I have driven.

People with preconceived ideas about small cars being good for about 40,000 miles are amazed when I tell them of my experience with Corolla

... having reached 106,000 miles without problems, I should thank you for a quality product at a reasonable price." Yours very truly, W.L. Laird, Keswick, Ontario.

DEAR TOYOTA:

1200 Hard Top.

"This is the fifth anniversary of buying our Corona Mark II. It was our first new car and has taken us over 105,000 miles without any major repairs, and is still giving us thirty miles to the gallon of gas.

It has taken us through snowstorms and rainstorms and never left us stranded. Out here on the prairies where winters are bitter it has started on the coldest of mornings.

We think our little Toyota is terrific and we are now aiming for 150,000 miles." Sincerely, Jean and Dieter Busse, Leduc, Alberta.

DEAR TOYOTA:

As well as performing and lasting like a trooper, our Toyota Corolla comes with a nice long list of no cost extras that you won't find on Pinto, Vega or Chevette. Electric rear window defroster, heavy duty battery, power front disc brakes and adjustable, fully reclining bucket seats are all standard equipment. And surprisingly, the Toyota Corolla 1200 costs less than Pinto, Vega or Chevette.

And this is why Toyota Corolla (with 1200 or 1600 cc engines) is the top selling model in the world and why Toyota is the number one import in Alderman Mike Young, along with the present city council (and that includes Mayor Peter Pollen) voted in favour of extending the lease for the operation of these aeroplanes and thus forcing this shameful curse upon us. Mr. Mike Young says, nothing can be done about it!! Incredible! Such a statement from a person, elected to do good for you!!!

Bernie Ecclestone, a spokesman for the Formula I Constructors Association (FICA), told the Toronto Star in a telephone interview from Surrey, England, that the rac-ing teams would "take a holiay" in 1976 rather than race for an 11 per-cent increase which would pay them about $250,000 a race.

The FICA is seeking a guarantee of $350,000 a race or a $250,000 guarantee plus $1 for each spectator attending.

"We've tried to modify our figure to accommodate the less wealthy tracks," said Ecolections.

The track owners have re-fused any suggestions of a per-spectator levy that would force them, to open their books to the constructors.

Bob Hanna, executive-direc-tor of the Canadian Au-tomobile Sport Clubs, said such a levy would not be equi-table. "In Germany and Argentina, for instance, they get large crowds but charge very little. In Monaco, they have small crowds but the admit-tance is $50 or $60."

Hanna said the race tracks are presenting a solid front in the dispute, the first time they have taken a united

Debate Limit Set On Time, Digest

OTTAWA (CP)' - The government invoked closure Wednesday to force a Commons vote by Monday on controversial legislation to abolish special tax privileges for Time magazine, Reader's Digest and other fringe publications.

The announcement, greeted rowdily by ope position MPs, limits debate to five hours before a vote is taken at second reading, the equivalent of approval in principle.

The legislation was introduced in April and has been debated for a total of six sitting days since. It is scheduled to take effect Jan.

Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp said it is in the interests of all MPs to give the bill second reading and send it to a committee for detailed study.

A formal motion invoking closure was to be made today by Sharp.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield called the move unnecessary.

*He said only a few Progressive Conservative MPs still wanted to speak on the bill.
But a government spokesman said it has different information.

Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party House leader, said the development is not good, "but it's not the end of the world." It is the first time the government has invoked closure since 1971 when it was used twice to put through a contentious tax reform

Steven LaRue, president of Time Canada, said the announcement came as no surprise. He said that regardless of what happens, Time will continue operations in Canada.

The legislation, if approved unchanged, would bar advertisers in both publications, as well as in a number of medical journals, and on U.S. border television stations, from claiming tax deductions for advertising costs.

PC FUNDS INCOME?

Said wednesday Progressive Conservative party money may have been used for a $300,000 fund set up to supple-ment his income after he en-tered federal politics in 1972.

"I was assured they weren't party funds," he said in an in-terview. "But they might have been. I don't know."

He said he was told at the time that the money was provided by a group of anonymous friends. "I don't know where they got their money."

Ottawa television station
CroH, a CTV affiliate, said Tuesday the money came from party coffers, not friends of the Quebec MP.

The fund was set up after the election to supplement Wagner's income as an MP and to help defray costs associated with his duties as the main Conservative spokesman for Quebec.

Bond Sales End Friday

OTTAWA (CP) - Sales of the current issue of Canada savings bonds will end on Fri-day, the finance department nnounced Wednesday.

Anyone who still wants to buy a bond must give a com-pleted application form to an authorized sales agent before the close of business Friday Figures on total sales of the issue, which pays an average annual interest yield of 9.38 per cent if held to the nineyear maturity date, will be released later this month.

OTTAWA (CP) — Claude He said last week he col-Wagner (PC-Ste. Hyacinthe) lects about $12,000 annually — told reporters he has no said Wednesday Progressive after taxes — from interest access to the principal.

The predicted increase in 1976 property taxes is "a minimum of 30 per cent," McKenzie claims, and the key solution to this problem is pressure on the provincial government to ensure that it bears its full tax load rather than the present one-third portion it now pays.

B.C.S MINING TOWNS ELEVES COMES

The restored gold rush town of Barkerville is a vivid reminder of mining's early days...the "boom and bust" days when thousands flocked to the gold fields, creating towns that flourished briefly, only to be abandoned when the gold ran out.

There are still mining towns throughout our province...but they're vastly different from those early settlements. Some are new towns, like Fraser Lake, Sparwood and Granisle - towns that exist solely because a new mine was opened. But, unlike the "instant" towns of bygone days, these are planned communities, with paved streets, modern housing and a good range of facilities for their residents. Other towns, including Merritt, Asncroft and William .ake, are longestablished communities that have enjoyed many benefits from nearby mining activity. New jobs for local residents...new customers for local merchants...new business for service industries related to mining...and, most important, a solid economic base essential to long-term growth and prosperity. The mines that support these towns also make an important contribution to our provincial economy, through substantial tax and royalty payments.

Mining might not be as colorful as it was in gold rush days...but in terms of jobs. payrolls and tax revenues, it means more to B.C. than ever before.

$1.75M Increase Bared In Gov't Spending Plans

By PETER THOMPSON Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA - Treasury board

OTTAWA — Treasury board president Jean Chretien yesterday unveiled an additional $1,751 million in federal spending estimates for the year ending March 31.

As opposition, members shouted taunts across the floor of the Commons, Chretien indicated the supplementary estimates, the first of the year, will raise spending to $31.3 billion — an 11 per cent increase over the final figure of $28.23 billion for 1974-75.

"Where are the cutbacks," shouted Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

He said the new spending programs include $144 million for new employment measures contained in the June budget. The Spouses' Allowance, approved under the Old Age Security Act, will cost an additional $45 million.

Included in the supplementaries is $5 million for the anti-inflation board.

The remaining $1.55 billion in supplementaries is needed

Also required are: an additional $385 million to subsidize consumer prices for petrole-um products; $135 million to cover salary and cost in-creases in the department of national defence; and $100 million to cover government salary increases arising out of collective bargaining agree-

VOTE MAYOR

I AM MORE INTERESTED IN OLD PEOPLE THAN I AM IN OLD BUILDINGS!!

MR. HOLLICK -candidate for mayor, is trying to bribe you oldyou free bus passes. He should know better than this as this is not in his power to do. Buses are under provincial government control. Even if he could, this might save some of you $1.00 (one dollar per month), but in stating that he would build three parkades for 2,000 cars, and a convention centre (with your large tax dollar increase in taxes), as these structures would cost millions -$1,000,000s - of dollars, he would be taking 10 times that amount away from you. How foolish. The convention centre (if it is so necessary for certain businessmen) should be built by them; not by you the already overburdened taxpayer! If it is such a big moneymaker, why have not some private people built it long ago?

Mr. M. Young, candidate for mayor says "development of a downtown residential core." I say this must not be done, as this is the most expensive property to buy; thus necessitating more and larger taxes from you. Also it would congest traffic more. There is better and less expensive property to deal with, in decent residential surroundings.

He also says "continued acquisition of lands and parks" I say no; this would also mean increase in taxes. We have probably more parks, on a per capita basis, than any city in North America. Do you see hundreds of young people using our beautiful beaches even? The answer is no. They don't even use what we have, as they ought. (Strange how these men say "spend, spend" so quickly. Why not?, it's other peoples money!!)

Victoria Times THIRD SECTION and nutrition

LIKE CLOCKWORK, oranges from Japan signal the advent of the festive season. Putting the bite on a juicy section, Lynn Smith, 2943 Shelbourne, gets into the swing of things. She has more than the sweetness of the mandarine to be smiling about. Price of a box of oranges remains the same as last year. The first major shipment arrives in Victoria the weekend of Nov. 24 when 50,000 boxes will be off-loaded. More than four million boxes will pass through B.C. ports between now and Christmas. Although that amount represents less than one percent of the Japan harvest, Canada is still that country's largest mandarine orange export market

Potato Pancake Recipe from the Bronx

suant to a column here that recently outlined a recipe for French potato pancakes, we received a note from Pauline Gleichenhaus of the Bronx enclosing her favorite recipe for the dish, one which she says she has "used for more years than I care to remember."

"If prepared and used immediately," she continues, "the potatoes do not get soggy. They are also not peeled, which seems to make them enjoyer. them crisper. Here is the Gleichenhaus version:

POTATO PANCAKES

3 medium-size Idaho potatoes, about one pound 1 small onion, about one-quarter pound, optional

1 large egg

14 cut bread crumbs 50 po Salt and freshly ground lawn, pepper to taste 14 cup peanut, vegetable or corn oil. 1. Rinse the potatoes well and dry them. Do not peel. Cut the potatoes into half-inch cubes. There should be about two cups.

2 Peel and chop the onion. Add the potatoes, onion and egg to the container of a food and blend to make a coarse puree. Do not overblend.

3. Spoon the mixture into a bowl and add the flour, bread crumbs, salt and pepper. Blend well. If the mixture proves to be thin, it may be necessary to add up to a teaspoon more flour.

4. Heat a small amount of oil in a skillet and spoon about one-eighth of the potato mixture into the skillet. Cook until brown on one side and turn to brown on the other side. Continue making pancakes, adding more oil as necessary, until all the potato mixture is used.

'To protect our jurisdiction and to avoid the possibility of the controls being exercised in a way that unduly restricts the expansion and jurisdiction of Alberta," the province's participation will be spelled out in a bill to go before the legislature in a few weeks. The provincial bill would bring all employees of the provincial government, municipal governments and school and hospital boards under guidelines identical to the federal controls. The controls will be retroactive to midnight Oct. 13, the date the federal measures took effect.

Alberta will delegate administration of provincial controls to the federal anti-inflation review board on a trial basis. Lougheed said that another major condition and other major condition attached to Alberta's participation is that if the province doesn't like the way Ottawa handles the program, it will set up its own anti-inflation review board.

Lougheed later told reporters he is concerned that if the controls extended beyond 18 months' many persons "will start developing the idea that the controls are permanent."

8-MONTH CURBS ONLY-ALTA. MPs Unanimously Condemn UN's Anti-Zionism Move

Times News Services

OTTAWA — An outraged House of Commons Wednesday unanimously condemined that United Nations resolution linking Zionism to racism.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker first won unanimous consent of the House to move the motion condemning the UN resolution as "iniquitous" and "ganging up" of countries, particularly from Africa, to force through unaccepta-ble resolutions.

After the motion passed, without a dissenting vote, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said Canada might, as a result of the UN vote, withdraw its support from a 1977 anti-racial congress in Ghana and a UN sponsored "anti-racism"

He said Canada would review its position on the two events in light of the UN resolution As Claude Wagner (PC-Ste: Hyacinthe) and Simma Holt (L-Vancouver Kingsway) questioned the minister, MacEachen said Canada will not consider reducing aid efforts.

He described the UN as the best forum of its kind, "despite its imperfections," and concluded that the anti-Zionist resolution will hurt the UN in countries like Canada and the United States.

Diefenbaker commented later that he had seen the beginnings of developments at the UN many years ago that had

He said when small countries, like Panama, were given the same voting strength aas major powers like the United States, and were egged on perhaps by the Soviet Union, it had become inevitable that resolutions like this would one day be passed.

The resolution linking Zionism with racism was passed by the UN general assembly by a vote of 75-35, with 32 ab-

Canada, the United States and most other western nations joined Israel in opposing the resolution.

In the U.S., Secretary of State Henry Kissisger denounced the vote equating Zionism with racism as a "moral condemnation of the state of Israel and not simply an abstract vote on Zionism.'

He said it added to "tensions and rifts and . . . distrust," and hinted that the United States might consider retaliation against countries that voted for it.

"We will have to consider the votes on an individual basis before deciding what specific action we will take toward various countries," he said.

The top Palestinian official at the United Nations says the anti-Zionist resolution may be only a step toward ousting Israel from the world organization.

Zehdi Terzi, acting permanent representative of the Pal-estine Liberation Organization, said the guerrilla group hopes Israel will become as isolated "from the world assembly" as Asked if the PLO would push next year to have Israel suspended or expelled, Terzi said, "it is probable, depending on new developments."

like good coffee ... has a tantalizing bouquet A fine wine that I serve frequently is Cherry Kijafa (Pronounced on the Danish Island of Funen — the birthplace of Hans Christian Andersen. It goes back to the days when people made a point of enjoying the good things in life and peasants produced their own fruit wines to sweeten their lives. Even to-day Cherry Kijafa is produced from exactly the same recipe — and with exactly the same care — as 130 years ago. Try Cherry Kijafa soon. You'll understand why the Danes say it is a Danish fairy tale come true.

WHY WAIT UNTIL YOUR LIPS ARE REALLY SORE AND CHAPPED from the blustery winds of fall and winter? Use soothing, cooling Blistex, a medicated lip ointment, at first indication of discomfort. It aids in preventing unsightly cold sores and fever blisters, too. And if your lips are too sore for a stick — or your nose is raw and red from a cold — you'll find Blistex goes on gently, yet works effectively. Because Blistex helps to maintain moisture balance, I use it before applying lipstick — keeps my lips smooth and glossy. Blistex comes in a handy purse size — or larger tube for family use. Available at all drug counters.

MANY PEOPLE WHO SUFFER FROM A NAGGING BACK-ACHE accept it as something they have to live with. To these people I say, why not try DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS? Because many times a nagging back-ache can be caused by kidney irritation that slows down bodily functions. Dodd's Kidney Pills contain ingredients that often bring effective relief by gently stimulating the kidneys to help relieve back-ache and that worn out feeling. So, if you or one of your family or friends — suffer from this irritating complaint, do as millions of Canadians have — try Dodd's Kidney Pills. At all drug counters.

An open letter to Victorians.

I am a candidate for Alderman in the City of Victoria. This letter has two purposes - to acquaint you with my aims, and, hopefully, to enlist your support.

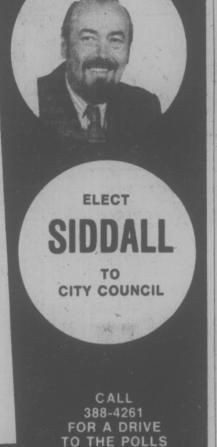

What can I accomplish as an Alderman?

- 1 recognize that City Council has very limited capabilities with respect to major problems arising from inflation and the policies of senior governments; however, good management begins at home, and I believe that much can be done in important day-to-day fiscal con-
- I believe it is absolutely essential that City Council co-operate with_{er} other levels of government for the benefit of the citizens of Victoria. For example, the financial demands of housing and transit are far beyond the financial ability for the City and its taxpayers.
- I believe co-operation, not confrontation, is required to make headway on perennial problems such as taxation on provincial government buildings; traffic and parking increase resulting from expansion of government buildings; and control of Inner Harbour
- I believe in the Regional District approach to common problems. I do hot believe in duplication of services.
- Where it is within the powers of civic government, I believe it is our duty to do everything possible to ease the burden of inflation for the retired and elderly, who comprise nearly a quarter of the population of Victoria. Governments must protect the savings and the dignity of this group of citizens who, through no fault of their own, are not in a position to protect themselves against changing conditions.
- With 25 years' experience as a practising architect in Victoria I feel capable of undertaking the duties of Alderman and of expressing in-formed opinions on such subjects as planning, engineering, housing. fire prevention, traffic, parking, parks and recreation.

I ask you, the citizens of Victoria, to consider my statements and, if you find approval with them, to show your support at the polls on November 15.

Indians Lose N.W.T. Case

EDMONTON (CP) dians in the Northwest Terri-tories have no right to claim an interest in 450,000 square miles of land, the Northwest Territories appeal court said in a judgment released Wednesday. The court, by a 4-to-1 vote, overturned a decision made last June by Mr. Justice William Morrow that allowed the Indians to file a caveat claim-ing an interest in the land. In Yellowknife, the Indian Brotherhood of the Northwest Territories said it will appeal the decision to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The Indians had claimed that they had an interest because of aboriginal rights that had not been given up when they signed treaties 8 and 11 in 1899 and 1921.

Potash Takeover Monstrous

REGINA (CP) — "Mon-strous," "schizophrenie," and "almost obscene" were just a few of the adjectives used by opposition politicians and mining executives Wednesday as they reacted to the NDP government's declaration it will use expropriation, if necessary, to take over at least half and perhaps all of Sas-katchewan's potash industry.

Although Premier Allan Blakeney estimated the takeover cost would be between $500 million and $1 billion, Liberal Leader Dave Steuart said that if all the industry is supported and the courts. expropriated and the courts fix compensation on the basis of replacement value, the gov-ernment will pay $2 billion or

"He's acting like a river-boat gambler with the taxpay-ers' money," Steuart said.

The potash announcement was theoretically just part of a wide-ranging speech from the throne opening the 18th provincial legislature, but it almost dominated the day.

The speech also dealt extensively with federal wage and price controls as the govern-ment said that even though it wants changes in the controls it will support them generally and will apply federal wage-increase guides to its own em-ployees.

the government for not impos-ing comprehensibe wage and price controls of its own, a spokesman for the Saskatchewan Federation of Labor vowed that union members will register "vigorous opposi-tion" at the weekend NDP convention to the support the government is giving federal controls.

A quiet demonstration by 125 persons at the legislature Wednesday urged the prov-ince to change its mind and fight the federal proposals.

The speech also promised "substantial new incentives to encourage private oil explora-tion," an announcement that reinforced Premier Blakney's remoted Frender Statelys statement to reporters that the potasti policy was due to special problems and not doctrinaire dedication to public

Potash, a government back-ground paper said, could be as important to Saskatchewan as wheat if production capacity was expanded to meet ris-ing world needs. Instead, the premier said, the potash companies are delaying expansion while they fight what could be years of legal battles against Saskatchewan royalties and taxes on the fertilizer source.

The present mayor and council; (and this includes Alderman Mike Young) have allowed Centennial Square, and the activities on the lawn at City Hall to deteriorate to a shameful state; and have done nothing about it. Don't they even know how to draw up a by-law "Keep Off The Grass"?!! The mayor has plenty of sarcasm and criticism for many things and people, one would have thought with such an abundance and wealth of knowledge he would at least know how to cope with this situation. The front of our City Hall is a disgrace, filthy with pigeon manure. The mayor and council go in and out of this building every day yet do nothing about it. What a shame. Our City Hall should be a show piece to the tourists and to our own people. Looking at the manure you would think you were in Asia or in a small town in Mexico. Candidate Young seems very careless even in such small matters as this!

A spokesman said the socalled "flying squad" is being designed to respond quickly to consumer complaints by investigating c o m p a n i e s which are apparently exceeding the selective wage and price controls.

Backing the special group will be five board units assigned to long-term monitoring of various industrial groupings. Areas identified so far for monitoring are companies dealing with durable manufactured goods, nondurable items, food products and primary resources.

The special group and the industry monitoring units will be part of the board's prices and profits branch, one of six major divisions identified by the chart.

The other five branches will be responsible for compensation wages, economic research, legal advice, communications and administration and financial services.

Meanwhile, the inflation board held its third meeting of full-time regional representatives, with another yet to be named.

The board is charged with monitoring and investigating wage and price movements under the federal program. A special administrator, not yet appointed, will be responsible wage and price increases and imposing penalties.

The organization chart sows about 45 categories of jobs. The board has so far fired about 80 people, excluding research and secretarial staff.

SEWER WORK DELAYED FOR 16 HAZARD HOMES

The Capital Regional Board decided Wednesday to post-pone until spring repairs on sewage systems of houses in an Esquimalt Lagoon subdivision which were earlier branded a health hazard.

Last month the board decided to do the work itself because of the hazard and then take legal action to recover

But Wednesday the board learned that estimated costs of $1,000 to $2,500 for each of at least 16 houses are far below contractors' estimates, in part because of soggy ground conditions prevalent at this time of year.

The work will be deferred to spring, with the concurrence of the property owners involved.

In other business, the board took a first step towards de-rmining what sewers would cost one group of residents in

Director Pat Massy stressed that the move does not mean a sewer referendum will necessarily be held. In recent years View Royal residents have rejected referendum proposals to build a sewage collection system.

The amazing Mercedes-Benz 450SE. Take a good, close look. You've never seen anything like it.

Here's a walk-around checklist for one of the most important sedans ever engineered by Mercedes-Benz - or by anyone else. It'll help you see, first-hand, why the 450SE defies imitation ... and why it deserves your closest consideration.

Halogen fog lights. Standard equipmen

Now, six things you don't see.

You'll appreciate the first four during your test drive. The rest are special Mercedes-Benz bonuses. All are standard equipment.

15. A unique engine. A trim 4.5 liter, overhead camshaft V-8 with a breakerless, transistorized ignition system and an all-new, mechanically operated fuel injection sys-dards - even for Mercedes-Benz. No domestic sedan has anything like them. They combine with the sophisticated Mercedes-Benz recirculating ball-type power steering for extraordinary control at all times.

17. Power disc brakes on all four wheels. The brakes are Ventilated - then further cooled by special turboblades. They are detem that maintains optimum fuel/air mix-signed to stop you smoothly, securely time after time - without disconcerting fade.

16. Fully independent front and rear 18. Remarkably smooth automatic transsuspension. They set new handling stan- mission, 3 speeds, with torque converter.

and can override the automatic to shift manually within proper engine speed ranges.

19. Safety advances. The entire passenger compartment is protected by collapsible extremities and a rigid steel shell. The shell is an enormously strong, welded structure. The root alone can sustain over 5 tons weight. The gas tank is mounted over the rear axle, nearly four feet in from the rear bumper, and surrounded by steel bulkheads The gas filler pipe, is designed to punch closed

You shift without interrupting power flow 20. Retained value. Based on the average official used car prices over the past 5 years, Mercedes-Benz holds its value better than any Juxury car sold in North America. Today, when everyone wants lasting value, a 450SE makes good sense.

Visit your Mercedes-Benz Dealer. Focus all your senses on the 450SE. You've never seen - or driven - anything like it.

Mercedes-Benz Engineered like no other car in the world.

6-Month Term for Killing Zoo Elk

CALGARY — Robert Joseph Lambert, 39, of Calgary, pleaded guilty in provincial court Wednesday to killing an elk at the Calgary zoo and was given the maximum sen tence of six months in jail. He also pleaded guilty to two game act violations — leaving the carcass of an edible animal and hunting after dark — for which he was fined $200.

"There is no way I can express my sorrow to the people of Calgary," Lambert told court.

He said he had been drinking after work on Nov. 3 and bull-elk, to death.

"He's here, Mommy! Shall I let him in or are you still cleanin' up?"

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

A news story that appeared in papers throughout the country many years ago told of a woman who testified in court that because she didn't play her cards properly in a bridge game, her husband kicked her. She was awarded

"This is the cause of a lot of divorce suits," the judge remarked.

In today's deal, North had every right to "kick" South (figuratively, speaking, of course) for the way the latter played a grand-slam contract. North-South vulnerable.

NORTH 4K64 WEST EAST • Q4 • J982 • 8753 • K102 • 98652 • KJ743 • 72 • 8 SOUTH

994 + A10 ♣ AQJ10953 The bidding:
South West North East
1 Pass 2 Pass
4 Pass 4NT Pass 1 4 4 5 9 5 ♥ Pass 7 ♦ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Five of ..

After winning the opening diamond lead with his ace,

South cashed the queen and jack of trumps. He then ruffed his remaining diamond. Then came the ace and mond. Then came the ace and king of spades, and this was followed by the ruffing of a third spade, on which West discarded a diamond. It was now impossible to establish and cash the board's fifth spade, so declarer was forced to take the heart finesse. When it lost to East's king, declarer was down one.

South's ruffing of his losing diamond at trick four was illtimed. After cashing the queen and jack of trumps, he should next have played the board's ace and king of spades. A third spade would then be ruffed. Now would come declarer's remaining diamond, which would be ruffed with dummy's last trump.

A fourth spade lead would next be trumped by South, East's jack falling. Dummy's fifth spade would now be the only spade remaining in the deck. Entering dummy via the heart ace declarer would then cash the spade ten, discarding thereon his losing heart. The grand-slam contract would now be there for the taking. the taking.

As declarer played the hand (poorly), he pinned his hopes on a 3-3 division of the six adversely held spades (plus, as an "extra," the possibility that one of the defenders had been dealt the doubleton Q-J). As has been ovserved, there was no necessity for him to have played the hand as he did.

Friday, November 14 ARIES (March 21-April 19):

Cycle is such that challenge remains, but prohibitions fall away. You are more flexible, capable now of making valuable contacts — and of enjoying yourself. Gemini, Sagitarius persons could floure. tarius persons could figure TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Check sources. Be specific, thorough — insist on factual information. Relative may be in pugnacious mood. You learn a secret which makes you more understanding. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): cent on friendship is under pressure. You learn about yourself, your desires and ultimate goals. You may want to make some changes based on technique or proce-dure. Avoid basing actions on wishful thinking. See situawishful thinking. See situa-tions, people as they actually are, not merely as you want them to be.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You get action in areas which can further career, standing in community. Presitge is on upswing, following controversy. Accent on family, adjustments in home area, the organizing of priorities. Taurus, Libra may be in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Check legal aspects of any proposal. Pisces, Virgo persons could be in picture. Emphasis on publishing, advertising, communication. What occurs has effect on longrange plans, goals. If you rush, you diminish quality of final product.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pressures mount but can be considered constructive challenges. This applies to personal, profesional and emotional levels. Specifically, money and love tend to mix and voy learn what is prac-— and you learn what is practical, what can be retained, what should be discarded. Capricorn could play key role.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): One who had been holding back approval, support will clarify position. You have bur-den removed. The fact that you were being penalized for another's transgressions will come to light. Your own prestige increases.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Highlight creativity, will-ingness to make new starts in different directions. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Accent is on getting to go - and how to arrive at destination. One who per-forms a special service may want a raise in pay.

YOUR HOROSCOPE SAGITTARIUS

(Nov 22-Dec. 21): Emotions tend to dominate. You become "attached" to places and persons. Sort through maze of responses. Keep what is valuable. Let go of illusions which can be costly, which can retard growth. Aquarian plays important role. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Hold off on final decisions. Leave room for revision, change. Highlight versatility. The more flexible, the better — you're going to expand activities. Older family member may be frightened. Understand that time, customs are not exactly the same for every person. Be lenient!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on short trips, relatives, ideas which require 'more work." You may have to do some "tearing down" for ultimate purpose of re-building. One who claims to be interested in your welfare does have ulterior motive. and may not even be aware of PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You feel more, respond to greater extent - and you are vinced that you are loved. More important, perhaps, you love in return. Gemini, Virgo persons figure in picture. You learn a lot — mostly about yourself. Money transaction works out in your favor.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are inquisitive, a natural teacher or reporter. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons play impor-tant roles in your life. You are embarking on cycle of social activity, adventure and travel. You are sensual. cre-ative, fond of heavy creams and rich deserts. You will be 'writing' in December, more

Maintaining Cabbage Supply

Obtaining a supply of cab-bage over a long period to fit the needs of a small family has always been a problem for the home gardener.

When young plants are purchased by the dozen, all mature at approximately the same time. Four or six may be used and the rest go to

The alternative has been to have seed on hand of early and late summer cabbage, fall cabbage, winter and spring cabbage, sowing a few seeds at a time to maintain a steady supply.

This method is only successful when a careful plan is worked out in advance to have suitable places available for planting out, and after some experience to determine the best sowing dates.

A reader has solved this problem to suit his family's requirements, and shares his solution with other home garOak Bay a few blocks from salt water. That gives us a clue to summer and winter temperatures and the type of

For his method I quote directly from his letter: Thave used Golden Acre cabbage for three years and find a spring planting suf-ficient for all my cabbage

"The young cabbages are planted under quart and gal-lon jars around March 1. I discard those which take discard those which take poorly about April 1, replacing with new seedlings (usual-

"Golden Acre, though a light cabbage, makes a deli-cate sauerkraut. It is a sweet cabbage for normal use, espe-cially the second heads in the mature.

"Each head is cut off quite high and the remaining leaves-pulled from the stalk to allow new cabbage buds to form. These buds are then nipped off to leave the one most sturdy bud.

"I then have a second crop of fresh cabbage off the origi-nal stalks usable from the beinning of September until

"This year we have already used the best heads of the second crop" (End of letter).

The method described takes me back to my father's gar-den. Each time a cabbage was cut, the top of the stump was slashed with two cuts to form a cross, and four loose give a second crop of greens.

The method used by the reader on the Golden Acre variety goes one better by pro-ducing a solid head on each in succession according to the date of the first cuts.

It makes it well worth producing one's own plants from seed when this method is fol-lowed. Seed sowing would probably be in Febraury for the March 1 planting, and in March for the April replacements.

With a few plants of winter Savoy or curled kale for use January to March, and a sowing of the variety Flowers-of-Spring in August to give loose heads in April and mature heads in May, the cabbage season would be extended to season would be extended to cover the year.

The idea could be used to advantage by allotment gar-deners, home gardeners, balcony gardeners and patio gar-deners. The double cropping is ideal when space is limited. I feel that after a little experi-menting many gardeners will thank our reader for sharing

GIRLFRIEND TELLS OF CONVERSATION

Lovell Looked Sort of Scared

Larry Lovell "looked sort of scared" several hours after a double slaying in an Esqui-

Tammy Blyth, Lovell's girl-friend at the time; was testifying in the second day of the trial in which Lovell, 21, is accused of murder punishable by life imprisonment in the deaths Sept. 6, 1974, of Isabel Jane Plume, 51, and Isabel Florence Bevan, 62.

dead from numerous stab wounds in Ray's Food Store, 1325 Esquimalt Road.

She said they were together for about 1½ hours and talked about "lots of things" but she couldn't recall anything specific. Later, she went skating and he went to work.

Lovell was wearing navy blue Levi pants, blue Levi shirt and boots, she said. The next day, while down-town with her sister, she ran into Lovell at a bus stop. Her sister invited Lovell to join them on a bus to their home.

Lovell told them "about those murders that took place. He said he knew who they were and he was sorry and he was in there just the day before."

'NEGATIVE REFERENCE' COST INSPECTOR $400

Saanich health inspector Robert Bradbury is back at work today after a 61/2-day suspension which has cost him about $400.

Bradbury was suspended last week by Jim Campbell, chairman of the Capital Regional Board, for telling an irate phone caller that one way to get action in sewers was to vote Saanich mayor Ed Lum out of office.

Lum said today he would have been satisfied if Bradbury had just been given a verbal reprimand.

In a closed door session Wednesday, the regional board endorsed Campbell's suspension as well as his recommendation the suspension be lifted today.

There was one vote in opposition but Lum said he did not vote at all on the

After the meeting Campbell said he had ordered the suspension because Bradbury had made "a strong negative reference towards an individual member of the board." The board con-member of the board. The board considered such statements "highly inappropriate for an employee."

Meanwhile, Daryl Anderson, president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees unit to which Bradbury belongs, said today the union will ask the Labor Relations Baord to rule on whether the matter is one for arbitration. If it is, the union will take it to arbitration.

In a brief to the regional board Wednesday, the union argued the sus-pension is in contravention of the contract and was taken by Campbell against the wishes of Lum.

The Forgotten Issue: It's All on the Record

At this writing the provincial election campaign is just a At this writing the provincia retector and a such a couple of weeks in full gear and I can say that, seldom before, have I had such a compulsive desire to find myself a nice, quiet Pacific atoll, far removed from the newspapers, the radio, the television and, above all, the candidates.

It would be convenient to put this down to simple nostalgia, remembering when elections were often actually fought on the issues. But I'm convinced now that there's a spill-over from the world-wide climate of violence and that we here in from the world-wide climate of violence and that we here in this relatively remote, relatively prospering, province have become a part of that global hysteria.

Even a cursory examination of the views of the candidates and the reaction of the voting public is enough to convince any monitor that this particular campaign is rooted in emotions rather than a cool or contemplative weighing of the important issues. A whole lot of that emotional response tracking with hote.

There are those who might argue, I suppose, that an election so fraught with vindictive name-calling and the vituperation of the so-called public is only an indication of the vitality of democracy. I wish I could think that way. Instead, it seems to me only the evidence of a shallow and badly-informed populace swayed easily by any promise and by the cultism of personality. cultism of personality.

An old-time newspaper friend of mine who covered Premier Barrett's last tour of the interior tells me that never before, in his experience, has he encountered such an ignorance of the issues. He offers the opinion neither in defence nor as a criticism of Barrett, but simply out or a sense of wonderment that we can have a sense of direction or purpose when the electorship is so fragmented by immature feelings that can only be described as intuitive.

He does not know if the Barrett administration will win or lose. Either way, in his view, it will not be because of what that administration, has done or has not done. It will not be because of alternatives proposed by Bill Bennett, Gordon Gibson or Dr. Scott Wallace. It is not, in other words, so much an election choice as it is a popularity contest in which, by and large, each voter allows his own narrow prejudice to by an large, each voice another questions.

You find this, particularly, in the hot line programs. I refuse to see them as a cross-section of public opinion, but they do let us know the mood of some individual voters. If one listened only to such programs it would seem that the only important issue is socialism versus private enterprise. Yet neither the government nor the opposition candidates make any such clear distinction. I 've yet to hear an opposimake any such clear distinction. I 've yet to hear an opposi-tion candidate, for example, who would wipe out legislation that might be described as remotely socialist.

As an issue, then, that might be described as marginal, to, say the least, but it may account in part for the amount of hatred, bitterness and labelling that has been so evident in these weeks of campaigning. Barrett and Bernett thus become either ogres or saints depending upon what camp you happen to be in and, in the process, the issues themselves take second place. This, I submit, is a hell of a way to run a thought, myself, that this might be one of the most NDP government has written into legislation more bold, controversial concepts than any in my lifetime. If ever there was ernment meant to stand or fall on its record this, sure-

The electorate, in short, had something it could endorse or reject. The mandate that Barrett seeks was only in part a public approval of his recent moves to combat inflation. More importantly it was a mandate to carry on those measures that, though they infuriated some and had the blessings of others, were on the books.

Yet, to date this is no more than a peripheral issue, smothered in personal abuse, blunt charges against the motivation of individuals and the nastiest kind of in-fighting. Barrett, himself, makes a serious mistake, I an vinced, in sinking to that level, in his frequent accusations, rightly or wrongly, against the former administration.

It's said that, in Ontario, Stephen Lewis made considerable gains for the NDP by sticking entirely to the issues and avoiding the temptation to join in the dog-fight that certainly cost his opponents some support. Barrett should have learned a lesson there. He should have said — he should still say — here is what we have done, there it all is in black and white, the established fact. Now it's up to you to decide if we should No such direct, frontal confrontation, clear - cut issue seems to have surfaced. I do not entirely blame Barrett for that. I'm more inclined to blame an electorate which seems determined to make a choice on almost any grounds (just yesterday I had opposing views based entirely on how ICBC

There is still time, of course, to put this election into its proper perspective, to recognize that it represents a kind of watershed in the legislative process, but for the moment it strikes me as nothing more than sound and fury.

Voteless Horde

When it's too late to do anything about it, the voteless ones — there are an estimated 15,000 in the city of Vic-toria alone -- are besieging their municipal offices, electdidates to complain.

With only one full working day left before Saturday's municipal election, the answer going out to all such deprived residents is: Sorry, out there's nothing we can do to help. The situation seems to be complicated by a number of factors, including changes to the Municipal Act which went into effect Jan. 1, 1974; disinterest or lack of co-operation in enumeration procedures; the false assumption by many residents that property ownership put them "automati-cally" on the voters' list: and a constantly-shifting popula-

Racing: Sandown Park Produced 'A Game Lot'

As Tojo the Tout would say: So the ponies have gone; but they'll be back next fall won't they? Asd yes, they will. The Capital City Turf has made its point, that Victoria can support thoroughbred racing even when suffering through some of the worst weather in history, records tumbling all over the

The magic figure of $300,000 had been set as the m goal earlier, based on two big Saturdays; and it may also be recalled that in September, 1974 when local owner George Harknett first made the public plea for horse racing here, he said: "I wouldn't hesitate to say that Victoria could hit $300,000, with improved betting facilities a $300,000 average is possible and I can even see the handle going to $500,000 on

That was Harknett's long-range view then and how the city's punters have proven him partly correct.

Another point, Harknett made then was—it troubled him to think that many things, such as horse racing, were drifting away from the Island and Victoria really wasn't getting a

So, since then the Capital City Turf Club was formed; the B.C. Racing Commission allotted the CCTC dates at Sandown; the horsemen came, so did the rains and, best of all from a financial viewpoint, so did the fans.

And on Tuesday it was truly remarkable. People were parking as far away as a mile from the track and hiking in or getting picked up by the shuttle bus because of the almost hopeless situation in the main parking lot.

Publicity director Harry Filion possibly said it best of all when he commented: "They're a game lot."

The point now is that the CCTC has made its presence felt on the horse-racing scene and even Merv Peters, the high po ed the track during the meeting. "Exceptional," he said. And further, because of the impact here, the CCTC now may find itself in a much better position to bargain for an earlier start to next year's meeting. It is not that there is a plan to take away any dates from Ex-Park. It is just that CCTC directors. target date is a start about 10 days earlier than this year's opening date of Oct. 7.

This would also give the CCFC a better chance with the weather and it would be fairer to the patrons who put up with terrible conditions to get to the track this year. Scotty Hughes, a veteran official and a Commission steward at the meeting, said "I still don't believe it, and would you thank them (the fans) and the horsemen for me." Ex-Park had 101 racing days last season and it is expected it will have about the same again next year; and if that appears to preclude Victoria getting an earlier start, it is not necessarily so. Ex-Park could start a week earlier or run through a five-day program in July and August; and in that way the meeting bould even end in mid-September.

Perhaps that's an over-simplification of the problem.

Because it is highly likely that the B.C. Jockey Club, which has a $4 million expansion project underway at Ex-Park will has a $4 minion expansion project underway at Exercity with be applying for Sunday racing again; and sooner or later, it is expected it will be approved. In addition to the installation of 2.170 new seats, the latest design in pari-mutuel equipment is included in the program. And, to be frightfully-frank as that is where the big money is, therein will lie any built-in preferences. It was ever thus.

Still, Sandown deserves a break and already CCTC directors are studying notes made of where they went wrong or mpany.

McKenzie wants to see the city police department increased by at least seven constables, and police effectiveness based on the principal of "team policing". "I a ple of "team policing": "i.e. police plus social service agencies plus community involvement equals maximum impact against crime."

He says spending priorities must be re-assessed to include provision for community centres and senior citizen

The predicted increase in 1976 property taxes is "a min-imum of 30 per cent," McKen-zie claims, and the key solu-tion to this problem is pressure on the provincial govern-ment to ensure that it bears its full tax load rather than the present one-third portion it now pays.

McKenzie is a past president of the Victoria Boys' and Girls' Club and a director of Goodwill enterprises for the Handicapped.

city, particularly arguing that Victoria must "take the lead" in the provision of low-cost rental units.

She notes that she is one of the few candidates "not di-rectly or indirectly connected with the Chamber of Commerce of business and real es-tate interests."

Besides more housing, she says, Victoria needs a long-range development plan "in-stead of spot rezoning which only benefits the developers;" to progress from the "good beginning" made on providing cheap rapid transit; and to strengthen its industrial base by offering expansion incen-tives to shipyards.

"If I am elected my energy and time will be spent serving the interests of the workers and home-owners, and par-ticularly tenants and pen-sioners," she says.

In the view of incumbent Bill Tindall the four major issues confronting city council
